Percy C. Ashcraft joined the Salem College staff in April as Director of Media Relations. Ashcraft graduated from Salem College in 1981 and served as the College's student Sports Information Director from 1977-1981. He earned his BA degree in Communications with a double major in Political Science and a minor in Public Administration. He formerly was employed by the Clarksburg, W. Va. Exponent-Telegram where he was Sports Editor from 1977-1984. Ashcraft, 27, is also a member of the West Virginia House of Delegates serving his first term.

This Is Salem College

For nearly 100 years, Salem College has been conscious of the academic and social needs of its student body. Our distinguished and competent faculty maintains close personal contact with each individual student, providing Salem graduates with a well-rounded liberal arts education as well as the skills needed to be competitive in the job market.

Founded in 1888 as Salem Academy, Salem College was established by state charter in 1889. Since its founding when most of the students were residents of North Central West Virginia, the College has concerned itself with providing education of high quality to meet the practical needs of the community. In 1888 that community extended only a few square miles. Today, Salem's enrollment reaches across the United States and to a dozen foreign countries.

The main campus to the College nestles in a valley of the Allegheny foothills in picturesque North Central West Virginia. The West Virginia countryside and nearby parks and recreational facilities offer ideal sites for rock climbing, backpacking, canoeing, kayaking, rafting and skiing.

Message From The President

DR. RONALD E. OHL

As Coach Bowden embarks on his second football season at Salem College, we are especially pleased with what he has accomplished. With focus on the student athlete, Mr. Bowden is firmly establishing himself as an educator and coach.

There is a unique camaraderie among all members of the Salem College community that breaks the boundaries of alumni, administration, faculty and students. Everyone has great pride in Salem's heritage and high expectations for the coming years.

The entire Salem College community can take pride in Salem's standards of excellence. Salem not only stresses competency in the classroom, but also intelligent inquiry in every aspect of student life, whether on the football field or in social settings and activities.

Of great importance is Salem's progress in so many significant areas. This year we initiate a new core curriculum which stresses both conscience and competency. In addition we are pleased with the quality of very special Salem College programs: for example we have received strong support for our innovative, four-year nursing program in conjunction with United Hospital Center, and tremendous response to a campus-wide program of Health Awareness through Nutrition and Physical Education that will give students, faculty and staff important information in order to lead healthy, more complete lives.

No one can guarantee a win on the football field or success in life. However at Salem College we can and do strive to provide our students, and our athletic teams, with that extra edge necessary to achieve success.

Message From

Harry Hartman

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

The Salem College Tigers will be entering the 1984 season with renewed optimism. The Tigers finished the 1983 season in an impressive fashion with consecutive victories over West Virginia State, Waynesburg, and West Virginia Wesleyan.

The taste of winning last year should make us hungry for more victories this year. Overall, our fundamental skills should improve and our intensity levels should increase. It is very important that our experienced players continue to provide positive leadership and reflect the poise associated with veteran performers.

The amount of success that we will experience in 1984 will indirectly fall on the shoulders of Terry Bowden. Terry is an energetic, enthusiastic and competent young man who has earned a reputation for hard work. If his level of intensity trickles down to the players' level and this is absorbed by them, there is no limit as to what could be accomplished this year. Hopefully, we are not resting on tradition, but building on one.

Salem College will continue to strive for academic excellence in the classroom and athletic superiority in the WVIAC this fall.

Tiger Football Prospectus

To say that Salem College's 1983 football season that culminated in three straight victories was a huge boost to the football program would be the understatement of the year. It was billed as the beginning of a massive rebuilding effort for a program that had deteriorated to its lowest point in recent history. The three wins in 1983 not only matched the total number of victories for the previous two seasons, but also propelled the football team into an enthusiastic and intensive off-season program.

The truly incredible part of all of that is the Tigers accomplished this incredible turnaround with a remarkably young, inexperienced team. Only five players who were among the 22 starters when Salem won its last three games will graduate. At first glance, it appears that each of those can be replaced by a capable player who either saw considerable action last year or transferred in with ample collegiate playing experience. On top of this, only six of next year's tentative starters will be seniors - an indication of even greater things in years to come.

A glance down the depth chart shows that conference leading passer, Jack Dettra, will be the toughest loss to replace. However, newcomer Jimbo Fisher and back-up George Clark seem to have the desire and ability to fill in where Dettra left off. Add to this the fact that Salem's two All-Conference running backs return and all five of the leading receivers are back to move the ball for the rejuvenated offense. Couple those facts with the thought that five of the six positions on the offensive line remain intact and the prospects seem very bright. Putting points on the scoreboard most likely will be a reality for last year's total offense and scoring runner-up.

The biggest problem a year ago was inconsistency on defense and an average kicking game. Anyone who watched the Tigers shut down its last five opponents and hold them to an average of 10.5 points per game can see there is light at the end of the tunnel for the Salem defenders. Gone are All-America defensive back Mike Whiting and stalwart outside linebacker Jim McDonald. Those are two key spots that must be filled in the fall. Otherwise, the faces will be pretty much the same. Eight of eleven starting defenders return.

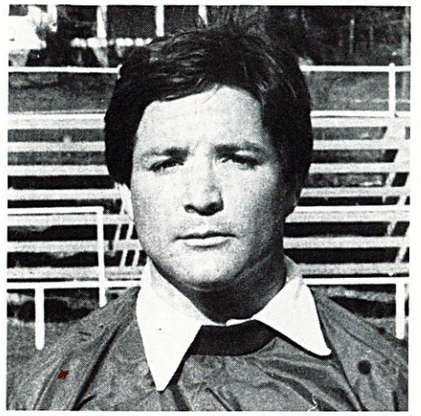
Although all of the specialists return intact from last year, several areas of concern exist in this vital part of Bowden's team. Fred Wilhelm, who took over halfway through the season, returns to handle the punting duties along with steady long snapper Ed Conklin. However, Bowden hopes to find a punter from among the frosh who can relieve Wilhelm of such chores as he averaged only 33 yards. Two-year starter, Doyle Gibbs, is back for a last year of handling all the kicking duties. Consistency and long-range field goals are the areas for improvement here.

While the outlook seems positive for the 1984 Tigers personnel-wise, a monster looms on the horizon for this young team. The schedule includes six road games including an opening trip to Birmingham, Alabama, to play tradition-rich Samford University. Samford is where Coach Bowden's father coached six years from 1957-1962 and enjoyed a 31-6 record including two bowl trips. Other road trips include stops at conference powers Shepherd, Concord and Glenville which all handed Salem tough losses last season. Add to this horror story a home opener against NCAA II national runner-up Central State University and it's easy to see that Bowden's boys will have their work cut out for them. Even with Salem's new found enthusiasm and a bundle full of new talent, they'll be hard-pressed to get through that schedule with more wins than they have losses, an event that hasn't occurred at Salem since 1980. Rest assured, though, that the Salem Tigers can once again be competitive with all the teams in the ever-tough WVIAC.

Head Coach Terry Bowden

"A Look At The Coach Of Salem College"

By Don Roupe
Clarksburg Exponent



Youthfulness, enthusiasm and "telling it like it is" are only three characteristics that define and describe Salem College head football coach Terry Bowden.

There are so many other labels that could be pinned on the second-year coach of the Tigers, such as: football oriented through and through; a "workaholic"; likeable; knowledgeable; sincere; dedicated; strong in his convictions about the Salem College football program. But the first three deserve some recognition as the young coach enters the 1984 season with a team that has been at the top in the past, but has fallen on hard times in recent years.

Bowden, who comes from a very strong football family, (his father is Bobby Bowden, currently the head coach of the powerful Seminoles of Florida State University and before that an outstanding coach at West Virginia University), is only 28 years old and that makes him among the youngest head coaches, if not the youngest, in the 50 states.

"There are both good and bad points about being so young," related Bowden.

"It helps, in a sense, with the players in that I am able to relate with them, but again, you need a little fear at times. Being young also gives me a better attitude in that everything is still ahead of me and that certainly reduces any thoughts of complacency.

"One problem with being young is when I am recruiting. I am not the 'older-looking coach' and this might indicate a lack of experience in the eyes of the recruit," continued Bowden.

Experience, or the lack of it, will not be a problem with Bowden. He has been involved with football for over 20 years, as a player, graduate assistant and coach, and if that isn't enough, he can do what he has done in the past, rely on his brother, Jeff, and even go to his father for additional knowledge. The 1978 graduate of West Virginia University served on the coaching staff of Florida State University before taking over the reins of the Tigers and one thing is sure, he was associated with some of the most brilliant offensive-minded coaches in the nation as the tough Seminoles always came up with the unexpected when they needed it. If any of this rubbed off on the young mentor, Salem College will be the grateful recipient as Bowden will be sure to extract from the Florida State University offense just what is needed to compete in the tough West Virginia Conference.

MICHAEL J. REED
WVIAC COMMISSIONER

Michael J. Reed assumes the position of Commissioner of the West Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (WVIAC), replacing the late Mike McLaughlin who passed away in April. Reed is only the third Commissioner in the history of the WVIAC under its present format.

Reed formerly was the Facility Manager of the Laidly Field Athletic and Recreational Center in Charleston prior to his appointment as WVIAC Commissioner. He also served as the Assistant Manager of the Charleston Civic Center and was a Sales Representative for Josten's Corporation.

Reed's athletic background gives him experience as a teacher, coach and athletic director. He received a BA degree in Physical Education and Social Studies from Glenville State College, and later attained a master's degree in Guidance and Counseling from the University of Toledo.

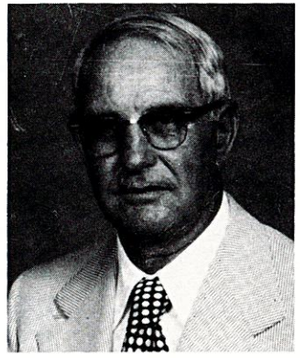
Reed began his teaching career as a coach of basketball and track at Dunbar High School, and later served as athletic director at Williamstown High School where he also coached football, basketball and track.

After a brief stint at Beallsville, Ohio, High School where he was acting principal, athletic director, and coach of football, basketball and golf, Reed moved to Ripley High School where he served as athletic director and coached football and track.

Reed, a three-year letterman in basketball and baseball at Glenville, has been active in the National High School Coaches Association, the West Virginia High School Coaches Association, and was Coordinator and Promoter of the NAIA Outdoor Track and Field Championships for Men and Women in 1982-84. He was the Assistant Director for the annual WVIAC Basketball Tournament.

Reed and his wife, Judy, have three children, Mike, Jr. (19), Matt (17) and Andy (9). The family resides in St. Albans.

CLEM CLOWER
NAIA DISTRICT 28 CHAIRMAN



Clem Clower, NAIA District 28 Chairman since 1968, has been associated with Salem College for 44 years as a student, coach, teacher and administrator. Throughout his tenure, he has served as Director and Dean of Clarksburg Campus, Athletic Director, Professor of Physical Education, Football Coach, Basketball Coach and Baseball Coach, a position he has held since 1957.

Clower began his long association with the NAIA in 1960 as a member of the District 28 Executive Committee. His 15-year tenure as District 28 Chairman is the longest of any chairman in NAIA history.

Clower also has served as NAIA Area 7 Chairman since 1971 where he has 69 colleges under his supervision.

Clower was recognized by the WVIAC in 1974 as an All-Time Coach, along with Salem's T. Edward Davis. He was also inducted into the Salem College Athletic Hall of Fame in 1984.

Clower was named Area 7 Baseball Coach of the Year in 1962 and was honored as WVIAC Baseball Coach of the Year in 1966 and 1971.

ABOUT THE STADIUM

Catalano Memorial Stadium was dedicated November 3, 1973 in honor of Don Catalano. The stadium, with a capacity of 5,000, has been the site of many thrilling contests as the Tigers prepare to play there for the 12th straight season. The stadium, which is lighted, is located on Salem Road off Route 50 West.
